Keen Local Interest In L. T. Cooper's Work

At Present Time Young Man Is Much In The Public Eye of a Busy City.

F. P. Stone, the Local Agent, Receives Many Inquiries Regarding Mr. Cooper and His Medicine.

Since his announcement last week that he had secured the local agency for the famous Cooper Remedies, Mr. F. P. Stone has been besieged with inquiries regarding the celebrated Mr. Cooper and the work he is now doing in Chicago. In response to the expressed desire of many persons for more news regarding the remarkable young man and his medicine, the following is taken from a recent issue of the Chicago Journal:

Still more cases are heard from, and the continued stream of humanity poured into the Public Drug Co., 150 State street, yesterday in search for the remarkable discovery of medicine. The demand for these remedies seems to grow larger each day. Thousands of Chicagoans who have suffered for years with chronic stomach trouble, catarrh and rheumatism are being made happy every day by the use of this peculiar remedy sold by Mr. Cooper.

An hour or so spent at the Cooper headquarters would convince the most skeptical person that this new treatment is something entirely different from anything else ever sold. As usual, Mr. Cooper was busy all day receiving kind words and thanks from the hundreds who had been entirely cured by this simple preparation.

Mr. John Schwartz, living at 303 Fifth avenue, had the following to say: "I have had rheumatism for several years, sick at the stomach, felt tired and dull most of the time. I have tried everything I have ever heard of in the way of medicine and found practically no relief. It was advised to try Cooper's New Medicine. I did so, and the result is I am relieved of rheumatism, my stomach does not bother me any, and I have a good appetite—can eat anything I want. I am feeling better than I have for years. I want to say right here that this is the greatest medicine I ever heard of. You may use my name, for I want others who are troubled in the same way to be relieved as I have been."

Another caller was Mr. W. B. Stewart, 109 West Madison street, who said: "I have had stomach trouble for years, and any one who is afflicted in this way knows what a awful distressed feeling it causes. Many a time I have felt that I would give most any price to be cured. It was by accident that I heard of this man Cooper's remedies. I immediately made up my mind to buy a treatment of him. I have been using it about two weeks and it is impossible to tell how much good it has done me. I feel altogether different; I have more life and energy than I have had for years. This medicine certainly does stimulate and strengthen the whole system. The tired feeling and weak condition of the stomach has entirely passed away. I feel well again."

Mr. Cooper said in speaking of the matter: "It usually takes from three to five weeks for people to feel the effects of medicines in such cases. I will have hundreds during the remainder of my stay in this city and thank me for what the medicine has done for them in cases of catarrh, stomach trouble, rheumatism and nervousness. I am always glad to shake hands with persons who have been restored to good health. If there is anything we should appreciate in this life it is good health."

Flogging in Schools.

About the time the lion and lamb get ready to lie down together—with the lamb inside, of course—the happy period will come when the boys and girls who go to the public schools in America may be able to get along without some form of physical correction. Naturally, the degrees and kinds of correction demanded depend upon the temperament of the child's family as well as upon the character of the child. There are many parents right here who bring up their children and keep them under perfect control without spanking or slapping or any form of physical punishment. Children of this kind are not of the "babysish" or the "spunkless" sort. They may be self-assertive and willful and positively "aching for a licking," but their parents took them in hand early and have exercised a form of control over them that has been vigilant, and after a time the youngsters have learned the obedience to requests or commands is the safest and easiest way of getting along.

The foregoing statement is very true and capable of proof to any one who cares to seek facts. It is also very true that a majority of the children who are born into the world receive physical chastisement with more or less frequency and that the punishment actually "does them good." There are children—plenty of them—who reach the age of sixteen or eighteen without having received a spanking or a whipping. On the contrary, they are often the brightest among those who attend our schools—lovable, headstrong and daredevil—urchins, who are perpetually fluctuating between trying to be phenomenally good and as wickedly bad as possible.

Those among us who were too old to go to school years ago recall the birch with the ferule and the leather strap filled with cruel holes, with something akin to delight. The "lickings" we used to get were painful and not at all pleasing to take. But we used to draw a long breath, grit our teeth and let the teacher put it on until he or she was out of breath with the exercise. And if we could take a "good licking" without whimpering or crying, and could turn and "make up a face at the teacher" when the teacher's back was turned, our position was established for all time. Of course the palm of our hand felt smart and hot after a sound flogging, and the chances are that our hand was pulled up to twice its normal size for a day or two after the ordeal was over, but none of us ever thought of mentioning the fact to "pa" or to "ma" because the chances were excellent for a punishment if we whined in case our disgrace was found out at home.

We have just read in the newspapers concerning a forcible schoolma'am down in York county, who was taken before a local trial judge on charge of whipping the pet son of some local nabob, and we are pleased to say the trial judge had been a boy once upon a time and had been whipped in school, and therefore he acquitted the schoolma'am of all blame, and as much as told her to go and do it again.

What else is there for a teacher to do when she has spoken to a boy several times, and reported him to the head master or to the members of the school board several more times? The laws of Maine require that every child shall have a chance to get an education. To expel such a boy from school would be unjust to the boy. To endure the boy's defiance of discipline longer is impossible. In cases of this kind all a self-respecting teacher can do is to burn her bridges behind her, and waste in and give that lad a "good whaling." No matter if the sensitive parents are angry and threaten vengeance—the parents are not employed to teach public schools, and if they have failed to discipline the children at home, the teacher should take the matter in hand and finish up a job that has been neglected too long.

Why, there are more than 20,000 of us old chaps living in Maine at this minute who would think it a great pleasure to have a Normal school graduate call us into the floor and give us a dose of the same kind of "medicine" we used to get when we were boys. We do not accept the saying: "If you spare the rod, you spoil the child," as having a universal application. We do believe there are times when physical punishment for refractory boys—and at times for girls, too—is the only certain and lasting remedy for existing evils.—Bangor News.

Nearly Overcome by Smoke.

Friday morning, Giles O. Bailey went into the basement of his building, where he runs a drug and periodical store in Biddeford, to care for a furnace. It was quite dark at the time and he was obliged to carry a kerosene lamp. When he had nearly reached the furnace the last thing he can recall is that he was attacked with a fainting spell and that he pitched forward, the lamp falling from his hand. He does not remember of crawling to the door, but that is where he was found by the firemen.

The alarm was immediately given and the fire department soon put out the flames, though not until Mr. Bailey's stock was practically ruined, and Frank Staley's barber shop and fixtures in the same building were badly damaged by water. Building and Bailey's stock were insured.

Mr. Bailey was formerly owner of the Portland Sunday Times, and after he sold the paper he lived several years in South Waterford till he in a measure recovered his health.

After Twenty-nine Years.

"For twenty-nine years I have been at intervals a great sufferer from rheumatism," writes James Hyde of Beebe, Ark. "During that time I used gallons of various kinds of liniments and oils, but got very little relief. The attacks were so bad that I was often confined to my bed helpless for weeks and months at a time."

"Not long ago, while suffering from a severe attack, a sample bottle of Sloan's Liniment was sent to me for trial. My surprise was great when I found that it gave me instant relief, and I immediately ordered two large bottles. I have used about a half of one fifty-cent bottle, and feel so well that I want everybody afflicted as I was to know what Sloan's Liniment has done for me, and I shall always have a feeling of gratitude for the man who sent me the sample bottle."

 Last Year's Sales of Hyomei, the Guaranteed Cure for Catarrh, Larger Than Ever.

So pronounced is the relief and cure following the use of Hyomei, that it has been publicly recommended by leading druggists and physicians in nearly every state and town in the country, with the result that last year's sales were larger than ever.

The fact that Hyomei is so simple and complete, and that it cures catarrh by breathing medicated air and not taking drugs into the stomach, no doubt has helped to create this widespread and rapidly increasing army of friends.

You do not risk a penny in testing the healing powers of Hyomei, for Frank Kimball proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, will sell you a dollar outfit with a distinct guarantee to refund the money if the treatment fails to give satisfaction. 12-13

PREVENTS PNEUMONIA.

Old-Fashioned Home Remedy that is of Great Value.

In comparing statistics of the fatalities from pneumonia in different states, it is interesting to notice how favorably Maine compares with other states. This is undoubtedly due to the general use of a simple home-made remedy composed of four tablespoons of olive oil and Anodyne. Mix well together and take in teaspoonful doses. The Anodyne alone is also applied externally on the throat and chest. If taken in time, this will absolutely prevent pneumonia.

Neuralgic Anodyne is also invaluable in all aches and pains, such as neuralgia, headaches, rheumatism, toothache, bruises, sprains, cuts, chilblains, croup, sore throat, etc. A large-sized bottle costs but 25 cts., and is sold under a guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. ## BRYANT'S FOND.

Almost a Serious Accident.
E. Wesley Whitman, who is working for Ralph Bacon, met with a painful and what came near being a serious accident Monday afternoon. He was yarding out sleepers on the Day lot near Pinhook when in some manner the chain caught bringing the horse to a sudden stop.
This frightened him and he reared and plunged, knocking Mr. Whitman under his heels and dragging him for some distance before he was brought to a stop. Luckily Mr. Whitman escaped without serious injuries, although it laid him up for a few days. The wonder is that he escaped with his life.

The Alaska concert was postponed last Sunday evening on account of the rain and very bad weather. It will be next Sunday evening, if nothing prevents, at 7 o'clock.

The County Commissioners were in session Wednesday. Besides attending to the usual business they decided to build an addition to the law library.

This has been under consideration for a long time and the result is gratifying to the attorneys and all others who know of the crowded condition now existing there. A large number of books are piled on the floor of the room.

It is planned to build an addition 28x40 feet at the rear of the building according to a plan submitted by Coombs and Gibbs of Lewiston. It is to be fireproof and built of brick.

Alcohol

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a strong drink. As now made, there is not a drop of alcohol in it. It is a non-alcoholic tonic and alternative. Ask your own doctor about your taking this medicine for thin, impure blood. Follow his advice every time. He knows.

We publish our formulas. We banish alcohol from our medicines. We consult you to consult your doctor.

Ask your doctor, "What is the first great rule of health?" Nine doctors out of ten will quickly reply, "Keep the bowels regular." Then ask him another question, "What do you think of Ayer's Pills for constipation?"

Mrs. D. A. Cole and daughter, Irene, of Bryant's Pond called on the family of G. E. Stephens and G. Q. Perham, Sunday.

HER DRESSING TABLE.

Sandalwood Novelty Rivals the Classic Silver.

Powder boxes and jewel cases are shown in silver, and here again the oriental touch is all pervasive. One Japanese box is of hammered silver with a minute floral design worked out with that infinite precision that marks the best pieces wrought in old Japan.

The decoration is so perfect that examination under a magnifying glass only makes one more impressed with its beauty. This box is sold at $35. Burmese boxes with figures from the Indian mythology are quaint and beautiful in oxidized silver. The prices run from $20 to $35.

Chinese jewel cases are the latest word in their line. To detail the designs as they should be were impossible to an occidental pen, but the cases themselves give out a breath from the land of mystery. The prices range from $50 to $125.

A striking hand mirror is shown in oxidized silver with the Japanese dragon in very bold relief. The figure covers the whole of the back and handle and is brought out to a height of half an inch. While silver will always hold its place among the furnishings of the dressing table, the present fashion in toilet articles runs to ivory and expensive woods, and it is worth noticing that nearly all of the latest designs are in oriental carving. The Japanese predominates, but there is also Indian, Chinese and, latest of all, Burmese. Sandalwood backs are the novelty in brushes, and, while they are comparatively sober after the brightness of gold, silver and ivory, the beautiful brown wood, with its fleeting perfume, has a charm all its own. They are carved in Chinese and Japanese floral and figure designs and range from $5 upward for odd pieces. No full sets have been shown as yet.

Tombs as Dwellings.

It is surprising to strangers to find Egyptian families occupying some of the tombs which have been excavated and abandoned. It seems unnecessary to see babies playing cheerfully about the doors of the tombs houses and to watch chickens running in and out as they do at the mud dwellings. When questioned about the tombs a dragoon said that those occupied as homes had been tombs of ordinary citizens of no value as show places for tourists. As some of them have several rooms extending into the rock and as they are cool in the hottest days of summer and warm in the cool days of winter, they are altogether desirable as homes. The Egyptians do not share the horror of dead bodies felt by Europeans. Children run about with pieces of mummies, and if they cannot dispose of them to tourists they play with them. A mummified foot or hand is so common in Luxor that one may be purchased for a few cents.

WITH THE FLOCK.

Breeding Value of Show Ram in Wool and Meat Making.

By W. J. WILLMER.

At this season of the year, with "show" animals greatly in view, the question as to their breeding value naturally recurs. A sheep man of much experience says: A ram born and bred in the stable, artificially fed from its birth and forced to a precocious development cannot transmit to its descendants the qualities of robustness necessary to a range system of sheep breeding. The English breeds do not owe their good reputation to measures taken against nature, nor have their typical qualities been produced in this way, and the practice in breeding establishments whose only object is a great development is too artificial. It is true we ought not to neglect the breeding animals destined for exportation, and we ought to feed them with the best fodder, keep their fleece in the best condition and put into practice every legitimate art to present them the most perfect way before the public. But it seems only reasonable to breathe the pure air of the field and not the heavy atmosphere of a half closed and half dark stable, to oblige them to walk and to graze, and, lastly, to always keep in mind in preparing them that the breeder produces wool and meat in God's pastures.

Carcass Competition.

Thirty-one wethers and fourteen lambs were entered in the contest of sheep carcasses at the late international show in Chicago, and prizes were awarded, as follows:

For wethers one year old and under two years—

1. Pure Southdown..... 120 81 57.89
2. Pure Southdown..... 142 82 57.75
3. Grade Southdown..... 147 84 57.14

1. Pure Southdown..... 97 49 55.13
2. Hampshire-Rambouillet..... 117 62 53.29
3. Grade Southdown..... 100 55 52.90

It will be seen that Southdowns, including one grade, won all prizes except the second prize for lambs, which went to the crossbred Hampshire-Rambouillet shown by Robert Taylor of Nebraska. The Wisconsin Agricultural college took first prize for both wethers and lambs and second prize for wethers, while the Iowa college carried off both third prizes.

The wethers made a splendid exhibit of carcasses, but the lambs, excepting the prize winners, looked a very light finished lot.

The champion carcass—Southdown lamb—brought 50 cents a pound at the sale, and prices as a whole averaged very good.

Quarter Blood Wools.

It is stated by a trade paper that fine wools are not in supply to more than meet the demand of the spinners for the season, and the demand for the coarser grades, which has been somewhat slow, particularly quarter bloods, is certain to increase. This authority says:

In the past few years—in fact, ever since the worsted fabrics became so popular—there has been a staple demand for quarter blood wools along in December, January and February which has practically cleared up merchantable supply, and no reason exists why the same demand should not materialize this winter. We feel that the unsettled markets are but a temporary matter.

STEER FEEDING.

Effect of Feed Upon Value of Manure Produced.

J. M. Bartlett of the Maine experiment station has recently reported the results of studies of the relation between fertilizing constituents in feed consumed and manure (solid and liquid) excreted by steers during digestion experiments with hay, wheat bran and cottonseed meal. His figures seem to show that in the purchase of feeds it is important to take into consideration not only their flesh forming value, but also their effect upon the value of the manure produced. Feeds like oats, tanned meal, which are rich in nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, produce manure rich in those elements, while feeds poor in fertilizing constituents produce poor manure. If the manure is carefully saved and used it may therefore often be more economical to buy the higher priced feeds, rich in fertilizing constituents, because of the more valuable manure obtained.

Another important fact emphasized by these experiments is that a large part of the nitrogen, the most expensive fertilizing element, as well as the potash, is found in the urine. Not only are the fertilizing constituents found in large quantities in the liquid portion of the manure, but they are in more available form here than in the solid excreta. The liquid portion is therefore considered the most valuable part of the manure and should be carefully saved.

Copper Chafing Dishes Popular.

Copper is the preferred metal for chafing dishes just at present, and a lowly utensil of this kind is in mission mounting. The dark oak cut in a square block is used for a knob on the cover and is guaranteed not to become hot. The corners of the frame are also set into the wood.

Did His Best.

"My goodness!" exclaimed an anxious mother. "What in the world made your face so dry, Willie?"

"Johnny Jones, an' me had a fight," explained Willie, "an' he throw'd more dirt in my face than I could swallow."

UPLANDS CELERY.

A Marsh Crop Successfully Raised on Dry Soil.

Celery we all know is a plant that likes humus laden moist land; hence people who have not tried celery state as a fact the cheerful fiction that celery cannot be raised on a market garden soil much above the water level.

Having raised the sweetest and crispest celery in our back yard (which has been tilled for a century or so as a vegetable garden), we had no hesitancy in planting various varieties at No. 1 experiment station of the Long Island railroad, having been assured it would not even grow, but we took second prize at the county fair with this celery.

No. 1 station, according to the United States geological survey, is 112 feet above the sea level; therefore it required very little nerve to plant a small patch of celery at station No. 2.

Although the soil is somewhat lighter, the altitude is only sixty-four feet above sea level. Humus is absolutely and entirely lacking, caused mainly by the annual "forest fires," due to cheerful neglect of precaution by neighbors.

burning brush to the north of us, that section of the island at present given over mainly to cord wood industry.

A shallow ditch was dug, humus was furnished by barnyard manure, celery plants set out, and occasionally, or, to be more exact, semioccasionally, the irrigation sprayers were turned on the celery plants, and, as is the ambition of all plant life, they grew, and station No. 2 turned out celery that holds its own in competition with that grown anywhere, writes H. B. Fuller in American Cultivator.

We shall continue to grow celery at stations Nos. 1 and 2, as it eats well, sells well and makes an excellent variety.

New Tobacco Varieties.

It is an established fact that there are great areas in the United States not now growing tobacco which have the soil, climatic and other conditions suited for growing valuable tobacco, and which for the welfare of American agriculture should supply the demand of the manufacturers. One of the most important phases of the development of these undeveloped sections is the production of varieties of tobacco adapted to their soil and climatic conditions.

The change of seed from one tobacco growing region to different soil and climatic conditions, particularly from the south to the north, is likely to result in the breeding up of the type of the variety and the appearance of plants with characteristics very different from the established type. These new types of plants can be propagated by using self fertilized seed, and uniform varieties of tobacco can be secured by continued selection of the best individual plants for seed production. The use of Florida grown and imported Sumatra seed for growing in the Connecticut valley during the past few years is a good illustration of the effect of a change of seed. The plants grown from this foreign grown seed are extremely variable, individual plants of new and unknown types of tobacco appearing in the fields. The seeds of desirable individual plants of these types were saved under bags, free from cross fertilization, and several valuable new varieties have been secured adapted to the conditions in the Connecticut valley and uniformly coming true to type year after year.—A. D. Shamel.

Damage by Field Mice.

Blackberries, raspberries, grapes, currants, gooseberries and strawberries are often badly damaged by field mice, and when the animals are abundant whole plantations are ruined. Strawberries are especially liable to injury because of winter mulching, and also because the plants themselves furnish excellent food and shelter for the animals.

Fallen leaves in autumn and snow in winter drift and collect along rows of blackberry, raspberry, gooseberry and currant bushes and furnish cover for mice, which work along the rows and gnaw the green stems, and when dead canes are left uncultivated and weeds are permitted to grow up among them, the resulting fangie adds much to the liability of attack. Winter mulching of small fruits also increases the danger, and if practiced the utmost care should be taken to clean surrounding areas.—David E. Lautz.

Manure For Asparagus Beds.

A heavy application of barnyard manure any time during the winter will be an advantage to asparagus beds after the old stalks and other trash have been well cleaned off.

Everett's Second Trial

the past 18 years and had not known of exploding. Has also whitened it. Was one of the corner's jury at the inquest on the body of Edgar Radcliffe.

Was at mine next day after the explosion and found hole in the ground where the dynamite house said to have been.

The hole was 10 or 12 inches deep. Was there when the earth was examined. Did not see any splinters of wood in the hole. Saw parts of a bat near the hole, parts of boards, joist and other things scattered around on the earth. Mr. Merrill recognized a clasp shown him as he had picked up. Saw the stove some distance from hole. There was some excelsior and dynamite in the stove. Saw other dynamite there that morning, two parts of sticks were six or eight feet from the hole. The bar, State exhibit No. 6, was shown Mr. Merrill which he recognized as being one he picked up. Found fragments of the flesh and bone northeast of the hole in the ground, and pieces of felt were picked up. Remembered seeing two blood spots south of the hole.

During the coroner's inquest no clothing was removed from the body. The throat was examined. Didn't remember that the cut was specially mentioned at the hearing.

Cross examined. Stove was a smallish cast iron one. Spot was pointed out to him where Radcliffe's body lay. Was a slight depression there. Found no other substance in hole but what was below the turf.

Asked about dropping dynamite into drilled hole, said they were about 2 1/2 inches and that the paper was removed from the dynamite before dropping.

Moses P. Stiles of Norway visited the Crocker hill mine, Monday, after the explosion. Found Mr. Everett there. Heard him make a statement regarding the explosion. Said there had been things stole there. Told of following a man around the night before the explosion and also the story of following the man on the night of the explosion.

Mr. Stiles said that Everett stated in his presence that he knew the party was Ed Radcliffe.

Cross examined. Went to the mine with Col. Dill as he was going there and wanted to talk military matters with him.

Col. Elliott C. Dill of Portland was at the mine Monday following the explosion. Saw Everett there at door of the mill. Mr. Everett showed him about the place and told him the story of the explosion. Said that the man was Ed Radcliffe. Asked to tell what Everett told him about the affair. Col. Dill replied that he had not heard of the explosion until he was told by the coroner's jury. He had followed and fastened him in.

Cross examined. Col. Dill stated that the recollection of what was said that day was not very distinct as he had not refreshed his memory since that day.

James L. Chase of Paris was a member of the coroner's jury. Heard Everett make a statement as to the man he killed and swore so.

Charles A. Howa, a blacksmith of Norway was employed on the mine property at Crocker hill, beginning work in May or June. Has done other work besides blacksmithing while working there. At one time boarded with Everett. Was working at Crystal Out the week of the explosion, coming to work with a team and keeping horse in stable with Everett's. Was using dynamite in the work at the cut Thursday. Everett had brought them dynamite either Wednesday or Thursday. Ordered three sticks and the big dynamite house to have to go to the mine, coming to work with Everett later brought the dynamite from direction of big house.

Everett left dynamite near where they were working. Left the works this Thursday about four o'clock. First heard of the explosion the next morning. Saw Everett and Gibbs there when he came with his team Friday morning. Heard Everett speak of the explosion, said Ed got blown up there the night before. Prior to this Everett had told him of Radcliffe being there. Everett had spoken several times of Ed being there at the mine. Told him once that Ed was there and had supper with him and another time that he was there and wanted to borrow some money. Had also spoken several times of Ed having been there the night before.

Mr. Merrill told of what Mr. Everett had said about following the man to the small dynamite house and of his going into house three times and his going up thought it was Ed Radcliffe. Stated that he Friday following the explosion Everett told him of following a man the evening of the 12th about the premises down into the county road and leaving him there headed towards Colby's. Everett told once of Ed being over there in an intoxicated condition and that he had to take him home.

Howe stated that he had bought whiskey of Everett more than once. It was delivered to him at various places from stated he had not been in the little dynamite house but that he had looked in. Had seen dynamite in there. Everett had asked him to make some staples for fastenings for the little dynamite house and he had made them. Didn't know if they were put on or not.

At 8.30 or 9 o'clock Friday morning was set to watch mill. While coroner's jury were there was set to hunt for Radcliffe's foot. Think that Everett told some of the story of the explosion while he was gone. On Everett's return went up on hill with Everett and places that might have been pools of blood. Later found another place. It was 16 ft. 8 in. from north house. Found a hole in ground. Before completing search for foot had gone about all over and find it but found some fragments.

Howe stated that Friday the knife was found, James Gibbs speaking of it first. The eagle to the damper was found soon after. Everett said when he saw the knife that must have been Ed's knife. What you suppose? Could have been David's or could see most the whole of it. The knife was three or four inches apart. That they took Ed's pocketbook. When picked up.

The handle and hilt of the blade were bloody. Exploded some of the dynamite by battery. The wires and battery were fused about the scene of the explosion. Identified the piece shown him as one that he found.

Cross examined. Howe stated that age was 30 years. Had worked battery at Crystal Out, Wednesday, Thursday. Friday morning found the cut as it was left. Had about three weeks with Everett. Had worked there 15 or 16 months. Stated that he did not see him after that. Might have had 3 or 5 quarts of liquor. Didn't see Everett intoxicated. Couldn't say that he had seen him drunk. Didn't see fuse in road first time looked. Attention was first called to fuse in road four or five days after the explosion.

Mr. Swasey asked him if he put the fuse there. "No, sir."

"Do you know who put that there?" "No, sir."

Howe stated that he didn't pick it up. Questioned regarding the knife and other things about the premises he explained substantially the same as in direct examination. The particulars were also brought out by Mr. Swasey. There was some other in the little dynamite house.

The State is bringing its evidence down to more detail than at the last October. The evidence is being left done that can have any bearing on the case. Not as many witnesses have been summoned as in the previous trial. There are a few new ones who will testify but some that testified last fall will not be heard at this time.

The defense worked out a good point Wednesday afternoon in the cross examination of Charles Howa on the fact that though Mr. Howa had searched the place where the fuse was found a rock on it soon after the trial but did not find anything. The fuse was found at least four or five days after the explosion. It was the opinion of the defense that the fuse was placed there by some one other than the explosion.

All the jurors except those serving in this trial were excused at the beginning of the case and next Monday morning, and from present indications it would seem that the trial would not be finished before the first of next week, though it may be completed this week.

Court Notes.

Perceval Walker and wife, Kate, and Herbert Pendexter and wife, Julia, of East Fryeburg attended court Monday. Three dollars were involved in the dispute and it was the balance of a seven dollar washing bill done by Mrs. Julia Pendexter for her mother-in-law, Mrs. Walker. The case had been tried before Justice of the Peace Cassius M. Pike of that town who decided it in favor of Mrs. Pendexter. Mr. and Mrs. Walker appealed from his decision to the Supreme Judicial court held in Paris.

The parties were here ready for trial, Lawyer S. W. Fife was here, but somehow between 2 p. m. and 6 o'clock the parties got together and it was "settled out of court."

Court Temperance Meeting.

The usual court temperance meeting was held at the court house Tuesday evening presided over by County Commissioner, Adelbert Delano of Canton. Considering the weather and the fact that the Town Concert at Norway was on the same evening, the attendance was good.

There were probably 100 people in attendance. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. N. Chesbro, pastor of the South Paris Baptist Church.

HENRY WITTEKIND.

THE SICKROOM.

How to Disinfect It Thoroughly After Contagious Diseases.

Thorough disinfection after contagious diseases means the burning of such things as carpets, mattresses, comforts, blankets and curtains unless it is possible to subject them to the action of steam. With the room stripped of all draperies, etc., wash all the furniture with bicarbonate of mercury in solution.

To make the solution pour a gallon of boiling rainwater upon four ounces of salt, stir it till dissolved, let cool and dilute it one-half. After washing with it thoroughly, rinse in tepid water and rub dry. When the things are outside wash the paint and walls with the same solution; also put plenty of it in the water for washing windows. If there is a closet wash it all over inside and afterward fill any cracks with soft putty. Wash the floor, slopping it freely with the bicarbonate first, as danger lurks in every grain of dust, says the Delinquent.

After the washing—not sooner—open windows from the top and let stand a few minutes. Shut them tight, and paste paper over the cracks about them; also over any cracks in the wall and a double sheet over the fireplace. Tack a strip of tin around the inner edge of the door, so that when the door shuts the tin will close the crack. Next put a big iron pan in the middle of the floor, set an iron skillet in the middle of it, and put into the skillet a pound of flowers of sulphur. Pour an ounce of alcohol on the sulphur, stick in a short fuse, light it and go outside, shutting the door. In five minutes look inside to make sure the sulphur is well afire. It will fill the room with thick, stifling smoke. It will also bleach out and destroy any colors on walls or ceilings. Leave the room shut for twenty-four hours, then open and air well. Remember that bichloride of mercury is deadly poison.

How to Freshen Up Furs.

Owners of furs may have received them from the summer storage and found them dead looking and lustless, a condition in fact, says the Technical World Magazine, that the fur is simply soiled, and it may be cleaned and brightened to a remarkable extent by a simple method without the slightest danger of injury to the article. This is the method employed by the Russians, who are certainly the most extensive users of and probably the best informed on the subject of furs of any nation. Rye bran should be heated in an iron or earthenware vessel, being stirred all the while until it has become as hot as is bearable to the hand. The bran should then be poured upon the fur in liberal quantities and thoroughly rubbed in. The fur should then be brushed with a clean brush or shaken and pounded until all the particles of bran have been removed. The result of this treatment will be that all dark furs have regained their freshness and luster and that white furs appear like new.

At the Country Club.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1901, by M. M. Cunningham.

The four women were drinking tea. Somewhere out in the October afternoon were four men who made up the friendly octet, but the women, on account of the coolness of the day and the charm of the big fireplace, had elected to stay away from the links.

Three of the women were not young, although the signs of age had been modified by careful grooming and diligent massage. Mrs. Amesbury even looked young with her slender figure, her shining hair and her grace of gesture and of carriage.

But Tressie Stuart was young, and therein lay the difference that made Mrs. Amesbury uneasy. One might give the lie to age by attention to complexion and costume, but there was a quality in Tressie's laugh, a light in her eyes, a buoyancy of spirit, that separated her from the other women and cast the blight of contrast upon their beauty.

"Tressie," Mrs. Amesbury said, "stop roaming around the room. You make me nervous."

"Oh, do I?" Tressie's apology was immediate. "It's something in the air, I think. These fall days make me feel like a young colt. I want to be out of doors, and here we are drinking tea by the fire, like a lot of old tabby cats."

"We are a lot of old tabby cats," Miss Angela Amesbury agreed cheerfully. Unlike her sister-in-law, she did not aspire to youthfulness. Having steered herself safely out of a somewhat emotional girlhood into a calm old maidism, she was prepared to claim all middle-aged privileges, and tea drinking at the Country Club was in no indulgence that appealed to her comfortable soul.

"You are the only kitten in the crowd, Tressie," she went on. "Run on out and meet the men. They must be coming in by this time."

"Angela," Mrs. Amesbury reproved her, "Tressie can't go without a chaperon."

"Why not?" Angela asked bluntly. "Two of the men are her uncles, the third is your husband, and she has known Junior Mason since she was a baby."

"Oh, well," Mrs. Amesbury shrugged her shoulders—"you know we don't think alike on such matters."

"No, thank goodness," said Miss Angela. And then the hitherto silent Aunt Georgia Stuart, who was officially Tressie's chaperon, interposed. "Tressie always does as she pleases, Mrs. Amesbury." And Mrs. Amesbury, with another shrug of her shoulders, gave up the argument and poured herself a second cup of tea.

And so it happened that as Junior Mason came up the elm walk toward the Country Club, with the dull orange of the sunset behind him, he saw hurrying to meet him Tressie Stuart in scarlet coat and stiff brimmed hat.

"I should have died if I had stayed in there another minute," she told him. "Can't we walk somewhere before dark comes? This air is like wine."

"It's awfully muddy," he stated dubiously, "in this path under the trees. The other men are coming around by the road, but this was the shorter way, and I wanted to get a few minutes with you before the whole crowd began to piffle paffle."

"Don't be slangy," Tressie admonished.

"Well, you wouldn't call their small talk conversation, would you? It's piffle paffle, and Mrs. Amesbury is the worst of the lot."

"I am ashamed of you," Tressie scolded, "to criticize your elders."

"Mrs. Amesbury wouldn't thank you for calling her anybody's elder. She considers herself the leading juvenile of the Country Club. That's why she's jealous of you."

Tressie stared at him. "Junior," she said severely, "I didn't know you could be so critical of a woman."

He had the grace to look uncomfortable.

"She's made me so unhappy about you, Tressie," he blurted out at length. "About me?"

"Yes, when you were away all summer and didn't write to me once."

Tressie's eyes were on the sunset. "No, I didn't write," she said after a pause.

"Why not?"

"Mrs. Amesbury said—that there was another girl, Junior."

"What?"

"Yes. She said you were paying devoted attention to a little Kentucky singer."

"Oh!" Junior flung up his head. "And she told me you were going to marry old General Barnes?"

"Mrs. Amesbury."

"Well, of all things!" Tressie's cheeks were flaming. "And you believed her, Junior?"

"Well, you believed about the Kentucky girl."

For a moment accusing brown eyes met accusing blue ones, and then they both laughed, the joyous laugh of youth that has come into its own again.

"She is good at-fiction," Tressie summed up. "She ought to be punished, Junior."

"Oh, let her go," Junior asserted, "and we will go for a walk, Tressie, and I will tell you all the things I have wanted to write and didn't dare."

But she would not go.

"It is getting too dark," she said, "and even if I have known you all my life, Junior, we must have some regard for conventions."

"Then let us slip in through the French windows and sit in the curtained alcove. They won't see us come in, and we can talk until dinner time."

The alcove was opposite the fireplace and gave a full view of the three women at the low wicker tea table. Mrs. Amesbury was prattling gaily.

"You see, dear Junior's money is a great temptation to the girls. Now, even Tressie—"

Tressie in concealment gasped, and there was wrath in her eyes.

"Don't mind her," Junior whispered. "I know you love me for myself."

Tressie whirled around on him. "Who told you that I cared?" she demanded. "You are taking a great deal for granted, Junior."

"Please can't I take it for granted?" he urged. "I am going to propose to you right now, Tressie, or Mrs. Amesbury will never give me another chance."

They came out of their dream of happiness some time later to hear Angela protesting.

"But you wouldn't tie such beautiful girlishness as Tressie's to that worn-out old General Barnes?"

"He is very rich," Mrs. Amesbury evaded.

"I think Tressie will marry Junior Mason," Aunt Georgia said placidly. "They are great friends."

Mrs. Amesbury shook her head pityingly.

"Junior likes so many girls. Now, there was that little girl from Kentucky—"

Behind the curtains Junior growled. "Piffle paffle!" but Tressie put her fingers over his lips, and he kissed the fingers and smiled at her.

"Junior Mason is in love with Tressie," Miss Angela stated, "and you know it, Marion. You had better let him marry her, and then she will be out of the running."

Mrs. Amesbury stared at her sister-in-law laughingly. "I don't know what you mean, Angela," she said.

"Yes, you do," Miss Angela did not mince words. "You know you had always been the belle of the Country Club until Tressie Stuart came, and you don't like to abdicate to youth and beauty."

Mrs. Amesbury straightened up in her chair and glared at the dear Miss Angela.

"You are insufferable, Angela," she began, and then, as the three missing men appeared in the doorway, she swept toward them. "We were just talking," she misstated sweetly, "of what we should have for dinner. Oysters and canvassbacks, don't you think, with orange salad and anything else you may suggest?"

Behind the curtains Tressie and Junior were arguing.

"I am going to announce it at once," Junior insisted.

"But," Tressie began.

"There are no buts," Junior stated firmly. "And there are a dozen reasons why I should tell them that we are engaged."

And just then Mrs. Amesbury discovered them.

"Why, Tressie Stuart!" she cried as she opened the curtains. "How long have you been here?"

"Oh, a half hour," Tressie considered. "Haven't we, Junior?"

"Long enough for me to propose to Tressie," Junior said, making the astounding statement calmly.

"And she has said 'Yes,'" Junior went on. "I know you will congratulate us, Mrs. Amesbury."

And then with a last fling Mrs. Amesbury gave it up.

"My dear," she said bitingly as she kissed the reluctant Tressie, "who would have dreamed that it was poor little you that Junior really cared for?"

The Ermine.

Across the stream a little above the bank a beautiful white creature was running rapidly about among the stones. It would often vanish for a time, then come into view again at some distance from the hole into which it had disappeared. Ever on the move, peering and sniffing here, there and everywhere, it would have been almost invisible in the snow in its coat of pure white were it not for the jet black tip on its tail and the flashing deep brown eyes and inquisitive nose.

This graceful, active little creature was the ermine, with whose white fur we are all familiar and which in many countries is used for the royal robes of kings and queens to be worn at coronations and on other very special occasions. It is also used in some countries for the trimming of the cloaks of judges which they wear when sitting in court, and there is a saying that when a man is made a judge he is "dressed in the ermine."

In the olden days the fur of the ermine was symbolic of purity. In this country the pretty white fur made up with the black tips of the tails placed at regular intervals is very popular.—Charles Livingston Bull in Metropolitan Magazine.

Historic Wedding Ring.

After the great battle of Edgehill, fought when Charles I. was king of England, it was noticed that one of his bravest officers, an ancestor of the present Verney family, was missing. Search was made for the gallant soldier. Nothing was found but the royal glove hand, still clutching the royal standard, and the wedding ring which he always wore still encircled the finger. The ornament was worn outside the gloved hand. With this historic relic the Verney family of Clayton, Buckinghamshire, England, have solemnized all their marriages, the ordinary gold band always being substituted after the ceremony. One marriage in which this wonderful ring was in use was that of Sir Henry Verney to the sister of Florence Nightingale.

Most of us are perfectly willing to be good and comfortable, but we don't always know how.

Money may be the root of all evil, but it is also a branch of modern industry.

CLOVER IN HIGHWAYS

Federal Authorities to Co-operate With Minnesota In Using It.

PLAN TRIED IN AUSTRALIA.

Engineer Cooley Will Experiment on Road Building in Sandy Soil—Clover Will Be Planted, Cut and Mixed With Sand.

George W. Cooley, engineer and secretary of the state highway commission of Minnesota, has secured the co-operation of the public road office at Washington and the bureau of plant industry in his plans for experimenting in the construction of roads in sandy districts, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Experiments along this line were authorized at the last meeting of the highway commission and will be commenced next spring.

Mr. Cooley plans to make two or three experiments along this line. One road probably will be constructed near Breckenridge and the others in places where similar conditions exist. Local authorities have found it practically impossible to build roads in sandy soil where no clay, gravel or broken stone can be obtained except at an expense so great as to make it out of the question, and it is for the purpose of finding some means of building good roads under such conditions that the experiments will be made.

The federal public roads authorities have become interested in the plan and will assist to the extent of paying a part of the expense. The local authorities of the districts in which the roads are to be built will be asked to provide a superintendent for the work who will carry out the plans of the engineer.

Mr. Cooley's plan is to plant clover in the road and along the sides for some distance, and when the clover attains a good growth and before it begins to dry to cut it and mix it with the sand in the roadway. In this way it is expected that the nature of the soil will be so changed in a year or two as to make it excellent material for road building.

In a communication from the bureau of plant industries this question is discussed, and the opinion is given that it is entirely feasible. Yellow sweet clover is suggested as the kind best adapted for this work. On this subject the communication states:

"The last named plant has been credited with so completely changing the character of the sandy soil on King's Island, near Australia, as to make it exceedingly productive, and they are especially adapted to growing in sandy land."

The experiments will be started next spring where the proper conditions are found and the assistance of the local authorities can be secured and will be continued for one or two years as the progress of the experiment shows is necessary. If the first year's work does not bring the soil to a condition which is satisfactory for roadmaking purposes, the same treatment will be given the next year and even the third year if it proves necessary.

ROAD MAINTENANCE.

Value of Patrolling Highways to Keep Them in Good Condition.

The utter wastefulness and lack of economy in building roads and making no provision for their repair and maintenance are becoming more and more apparent to taxpayers. The importance of the subject is appreciated in some states, and measures have been adopted. There are, however, many communities where the necessary steps have not yet been taken. The subject is treated pertinently by W. Pierpont White in a recent article in Outing Magazine. In this article Mr. White says:

"Not one cent of money should be expended in the creation of these expensive highways unless at the same time a system of careful maintenance and repair is established."

"Steam roads when first built were permitted to run down, ties to rot, the ends of iron rails to flatten, bolts in the fish plates to become loose, until a general overhauling was ordered, and an excessively expensive amount of repairs was made owing to the neglect. Today well managed roads do not permit this. But each road is divided into sections under engineers, under assistant engineers, under section bosses, with men passing daily up and down the road, giving it constant repair and attention. This we are familiar with."

"In Europe highways are patrolled in the same way. Men, usually old, patrol the roads under their care, each in charge of a section, and the slightest hole in the wearing surface is detected, repaired and filled in immediately after it commences. Ruts are detected and filled, sluces and ditches kept open and washing of the sides stopped, and only by this constant care are roads kept in good condition. This same system must come to this country and be inaugurated at the time that the general improvement is made; otherwise the people's money will be thrown away."

How to Save Trousers.

To save men's trousers cut a broomstick so it will fit under the lowest shelf in the clothes closet, cover with cotton batting about three or four thicknesses, then with black cambric, and sew this down tight. Make a loop on either end. Tack two tacks on the shelf in the closet so the stick will hang about three or four inches down. Fold men's and boys' trousers, by creases, and they will look like new every time by hanging them across the covered stick.

OXFORD.

Parish Meeting. Thursday evening, March 12, the Congregational society held a parish reunion and supper in S. of T. hall. A large number of invitations were sent out and nearly all responded. The supper was such as only our good housewives know how to prepare and each and every one present pronounced it excellent. After the guests had been served the remaining unbroken portions of food were sold at auction.

The business meeting was opened with Rev. Frederick Newport acting as moderator. The audience sang, 'Nearer My God to Thee,' which was followed by prayer by Mr. Newport. Then came reading of records of last meeting by clerk Frank Starbird and reports of officers of parish.

Several new members were voted in, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hayes, Mrs. Louisa Richmond, Mrs. Alice Richmond, and Frank Durell. Next came election of officers for ensuing year:

Clerk—Frank Starbird.

Treas.—E. W. Edwards.

Trustees for three years—H. H. Hall, Col.—Eva Frost.

There were selections by choir. Then came reports of different auxiliaries to church; reports of Christian Endeavor by Mrs. James Cook, average attendance during year 22; report of Sunday school by secretary Mrs. Kate Starbird; report of Ladies Aid by secretary Mrs. James Cook.

Mrs. Cook reported that after deducting expenses of painting church and parsonage and doing some charitable work there was still a comfortable balance in bank; report of mission study circle by Mrs. George Hazen; report of church by clerk Mrs. Kate Starbird, who stated that Mr. Newport had served seven years as pastor.

Solo by Mrs. Denning; reading letters from former pastors and absent friends; Mrs. H. R. Faris read a newspaper clipping pertaining to W. B. Cadamus. Among many pleasant things mentioned it stated that Mr. Cadamus had in Andrew Carnegie, the steel king, a loyal and staunch friend. That Mr. Carnegie had not only invited Mr. Cadamus to visit him at his home in Scotland but had accompanied the invitation with a substantial check to cover all expenses.

Letters were read from Mr. Appraham by Miss Andrews, G. R. Searies by Lulu Stone, Holaise E. Hensley by Mrs. Edith Komp, Mr. Kinnon by Ethel Flood, Rev. Mr. Watkins by Mrs. Kate Starbird. Mr. Watkins' letter was somewhat humorous and related several pleasant experiences he had while in Oxford.

Duet by Margaret Walter and Ida Stone. Letters read from Mrs. Fannie Walker by Jessie Kay, Mrs. Mary Lockwood by Mrs. Chas. Hanscom, Rev. Mr. Demont by Ida Stone, Mrs. Spring by Mrs. Frank Keene. Mrs. Spring wrote in a reminiscent mood and in a pleasant manner compared some of her earlier experiences in church work with the more modern conveniences and comforts, saying that frequently in winter the minister preached with his overcoat on.

Remarks were now in order from Rev. Mr. Newport. Among other things he said, 'It is a good thing to get together in many ways and that many suggestions came to him from the letters. He enjoyed seeing whole families in church for worship. He suggested that perhaps the minister who preached with his overcoat on put brimstone enough into his sermon to keep warm. Times have changed in religion as in everything else. We have different views of Bible, different ideas of future punishment, and being lost without hope. The modern idea is to build up a true manhood here on earth and let the future take care of itself; live a true life according to Christian standards; study its doctrines; give of our gifts and influence; use our best and highest manhood; be interested in the education of Christian doctrines and always strive to maintain the best there is in us.'

Closed by singing, 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds.'

Edmund Parrott went to Boston, Friday, returning Monday.

The woolen mill was closed Monday the entire day during town meeting.

Several ladies were interested spectators and closely watched proceedings at the annual town meeting.

Edwin P. Fauce, who has been making his home with his sister at Readfield since December, has returned. Mr. Fauce is stopping at hotel and is improved in health.

The Pythian Sisters held a business meeting Wednesday evening, March 11. Three gentlemen members were initiated and the fun was fast and furious. Before any more members are taken in a new gown must be procured.

Lieut. Fayette Bicknell of East Pepperell, Mass., a former resident of Oxford and an officer in the 10th Maine Regiment died at his home in that town on Friday, March 13, after a long illness. The burial will be at Oxford on Tuesday at 4 p. m. Mrs. Bicknell and sister, Agnes Hackett will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Holden while in town.

The Methodist Sunday school held a social in the vestry on Friday evening which was largely attended. A short program was carried out consisting of singing by the choir, reading by the superintendent Mr. Holden; song by Percy Adams; reading Alton Delano. Three young ladies, Genevieve and Marjorie Barker and Helen Bangs were present from Norway as guests. Miss Marjorie sang by request and responded to an encore. After the entertainment refreshments were served consisting of ice cream, cake, punch, etc., after which games were played by the children. Rev. Mr. Farnsworth was unable to be present on account of a sprained ankle received in the gymnasium at college.

Baseball Starting Up.

Arthur McPherson With the American League Team for the Boston Journal.

The real "dementia Americana" is attacking New England, and every "fan" will be on the athletic seat until the clicking of the trustee ushers in the opening of the baseball season.

If you can't be on the spot, the next best thing is to hear from some one who is there, and realizing this, the Boston Journal has secured Arthur McPherson, its baseball expert, to Little Rock with the American League team. His daily letters are intimate accounts of the daily work and life led by the players during the trying-out for positions on the big team, and he will watch carefully the work of the new recruits who are expected to infuse new life into the team this spring. Mr. McPherson offers to answer any questions sent to him at Little Rock, and he expects that followers of the game will take advantage of this opportunity to get firsthand knowledge of the men who will represent Boston this summer. He is accompanied by an expert photographer, whose work helps to make The Journal's account of the training season complete in every respect.

Thomas Burke, the well-known authority on track athletics, will contribute special articles during the season, and all departments of sport will be covered by a staff of able writers, all of whom intend to keep the sporting page of the Journal up to the high standard of popularity it has attained in the past.

The new dormitory will occupy substantially the spot of the old dormitory, built in 1882 and burned a half dozen years ago. The proposed building will be sixty-six feet front with two wings running back forty-eight feet. The arrangement of the interior of each wing is the same, in fact they are duplicates. Each floor contains three studies and a sleeping room connecting with the front study.

The first and third floors, in addition, contain a store room. On the second floor in place of the store room there is a lavatory, containing closets, baths, etc., sufficiently large to accommodate all floors, in the part connecting wings, on the first floor is the large reception room entered from the corridors on each side. On the second floor are two studies with alcoves and a passage way in the rear connecting the two main corridors. On the third floor are four studies or two studies with sleeping rooms.

The basement of the south wing will contain a kitchen and laundries; the main part the boiler and heating apparatus, with place for fuel; the north wing is for storage.

The building is so arranged that of the twenty-eight study rooms, eighteen will be corner rooms and of the remaining ten rooms four will be front rooms. It is hoped to have the building in readiness for the fall term.

Baseball Starting Up.

Arthur McPherson With the American League Team for the Boston Journal.

The real "dementia Americana" is attacking New England, and every "fan" will be the victim of the disease soon, until the clicking of the turnstile ushers in the opening of the baseball season.

If you can't be on the spot, the next best thing is to hear from some one who is there, and, realizing this, The Boston Journal has sent Arthur McPherson, its baseball expert to Little Rock with the American League team. His daily letters are intimate accounts of the daily work and life led by the players during the trying-out for positions on the big team, and he will watch carefully the work of the new recruits who are expected to infuse new life into the team this spring. Mr. McPherson offers to answer any questions sent to him at Little Rock, and he expects that followers of the game will take advantage of this opportunity to get firsthand knowledge of the men who will represent Boston this summer. He is accompanied by an expert photographer, whose work helps to make The Journal's account of the trying season complete in every respect.

Thomas Burke, the well-known authority on track athletics, will contribute special articles during the season, and all departments of sport will be covered by a staff of able writers, all of whom intend to keep the sporting page of the Journal up to the high standard of popularity it has attained in the past.

The new dormitory will occupy substantially the spot of the old dormitory, built in 1882 and burned a half dozen years ago. The proposed building will be sixty-six feet front with two wings running back forty-eight feet. The arrangement of the interior of each wing is the same, in fact they are duplicates. Each floor contains three studies and a sleeping room connecting with the front study.

The first and third floors, in addition, contain a storeroom. On the second floor in place of the store room there is a lavatory, containing closets, baths, etc., sufficiently large to accommodate all floors, in the part connecting wings, on the first floor is the large reception room entered from the corridors on each side. On the second floor are two studies with alcoves and a passage way in the rear connecting the two main corridors. On the third floor are four studies or two studies with sleeping rooms.

The basement of the new wing will contain a kitchen and laundry; the main part the boiler and heating apparatus, with place for fuel; the north wing is for storage.

The building is so arranged that of the twenty-eight study rooms, eighteen will be corner rooms and of the remaining ten rooms four will be front rooms. It is hoped to have the building in readiness for the fall term.

Friday evening at the Columbia hotel the Bridgton Academy Alumni association of Portland held its 11th annual reunion. There were 75 in attendance.

A Sudden Death.
George M. Knight of Bismestown died very suddenly, Saturday night about midnight, with heart failure. He called his wife saying he had a pain and she got him medicine, which relieved him, and left the room for only a few minutes, when she returned he was gone.

Mr. Knight was born in Gorham, Me., 67 years ago. He came to Waterford when a boy and has lived there nearly all of his life. He was by occupation a farmer, was a member of the Congregational church; in politics a Republican. He was tax collector for the town of Waterford a good many years, had been selectman and held other responsible offices. His life was that of a good and upright citizen in all respects.

Besides his wife he leaves three daughters and one son, Harriette Knight of Norway, Edith Knight of Waterford and Raymond Knight, who is in the University of Maine, a member of the graduating class of 1908.

The funeral was from his late home Tuesday afternoon, his pastor, Rev. G. P. Fuller, being the attending clergyman. The large amount of flowers told of many sympathizing friends.

GREENWOOD.
The Free Silver Man.
A certain person working in the woods not far from here but a resident of South Paris, won the above title in a singular and original manner. Calling at our local store a few days ago a ten cent piece attracted his attention on the counter.

The proprietor knowing the money was there kept his eye on the person referred to, although busy in another part of the store. The gentleman put his thumb on the coin in question, pushed it to the end of the showcase when he deftly transferred it to his vest pocket. Asked to leave the store the proprietor asked him what he proposed to do about the ten cents he had lifted he denied the allegation and walked away.

As the evidence was all in and the prisoner at the bar had nothing but his word for defence he is adjudged guilty by all-knowing the particulars. Hence the title of Free Silver Man is one that will probably stick to him for sometime.

Ten degrees below zero last Tuesday morning, above eighty above Friday. Both figures show extremes for the season, the former of cold and the latter of heat.

Aprons of the cold weather Tuesday morning we saw our first crow on that day and some of the men at work for the Paris Co. discovered a woodchuck some distance from the mill. It must be great sport pelting him with snowballs.

A fairly good crowd took in the masquerade ball at this place and had a royal good time. Some exceptionally appropriate costumes were in evidence and some extremely comical ones.

Carroll Bacon took first honors for gentlemen and Bertha Cummings and Alice Dunham for the ladies.

Allan Cole is the latest person to be added to the list of injured among the crew of the Paris Mfg. Co. His hand was caught between two logs in such a manner that the skin and flesh was lacerated badly, the cords and bones of the hand and wrist being plainly visible where the flesh was torn away.

While harnessing his horse a few days ago Frank Hayes received a severe injury to an eye. The animal flung his head around hitting Mr. Hayes in one corner of the eye. It is supposed that a blood vessel was ruptured by the accident. The eye is in bad condition and some fear it is endangered that the sight may be destroyed.

While we are not well posted in regard to the habits of the denizens of our fields, forests and streams, our curiosity was considerably aroused by the sight of a good sized frog in the water tub at the foot of the farm hill. It must be confessed that we had always supposed and do yet that the frog buried himself in the mud and remained in a comatose condition for the winter. This being the case and we await proof to the contrary. Why was Mr. Frog falling on a zero morning in a water tub? He certainly was there very much alive, and just as plump as he would be in August, as several persons can attest.

Pottle conducting the services. Mr. Jordan had been married twenty-four years, and leaves a widow and seven children, also his parents and four brothers and two sisters.

Saturday evening, Mar. 14th, about 40 of the members of Neziascot Lodge, I. O. O. # Supreme Judicial Court.

March Term, 1908.

The first of this week's court report may be found on page 8.

Bertha West in 1906 was sent to the insane hospital observation and somewhat later was discharged from that institution as not being insane but affected with a quality known as nymphomania. Since that time various attempts have been made to do something for her but without avail and a few months since she got into difficulty in Portland and was sent here and committed to jail to await action on the indictment in this county. She was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. Judge Whitehouse gave the matter for further consideration and the case has not been institution especially designed for such cases finally sentenced her to two years in the State prison.

Paul Ross of Rumford Falls, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent exposure, was brought in and after some debating the case was continued as County Attorney Barnes was satisfied that Ross was not now in the liquor business.

Victor Lester of the same place and charged with the same offense was fined $50 as Mr. Barnes was not satisfied that he was unable to pay. He was given 30 days in jail.

The roll of the term's indictments was then called and a list of respondents were brought in. They were all from Rumford Falls, all charged with liquor cases and M. F. McCarthy was attorney for them all. In all the cases Mr. McCarthy entered a plea of not guilty, but was not prepared to try any of them and they were all carried over to Monday.

Mrs. Daisy Davis retracted her plea and pleaded guilty and the case against her was continued and she was allowed to go.

Ed Eichles was indicted for attempting to bribe an officer. He pleaded guilty. Mr. Barnes stated that he should not move for sentence. Judge Whitehouse wished to learn something of the case and Mr. Eichles was placed on the stand to relate the facts of the case.

Eichles is superintendent of the packing department in the paper bag factory, told of being in the office of Deputy Sheriff H. L. Elliott on business, and said he told Mr. Elliott that he had a chance to buy the Tucker place at Rumford Falls, and asked if he could run it and be protected, but Mr. Elliott told him he could not.

On cross-examination by Mr. Barnes, Eichles denied making any further proposition to Mr. Elliott, and Judge Whitehouse asked him why he pleaded guilty, and said he did not want to accept a plea of guilty to an act which he did not commit.

Deputy Sheriff Elliott was then placed on the stand, and said that he had made a proposition to divide with him the profits of the place, after paying necessary expenses and a salary equal to what he was getting in the mill.

Eichles was advised to change his plea, and accordingly pleaded not guilty. A trial in the afternoon session it was decided to continue the case. Judge Whitehouse read the statute applying to the case, which provides a heavy penalty, and said that he did not believe the respondent, if he made the proposition to that kind of goods. Stated that he did not sell anyone any intoxicating liquors while he was in there, sold Uno beer and cigars.

Cross examined. Came to Rumford Falls first of month of January. Had been away about 15 months, worked in woods at Conway, N. H., and had also worked in Boston. Had also been in Rangle region cutting lumber. Traded with Dan McCarthy to take the shop at Rumford Falls. Stated that he had been in shop on Jan. 30. There were no rows while he was in shop.

An older man, Mr. DeLong, testified that he was in the shop when Herman was there. That Herman asked for hard drink and was told by Harry that he did not sell them.

W. S. Grafton of Westbrook, a barber by trade, had known Herman for years and had heard it spoken in his shop that he was a liar and spotter.

Cross examined, said that he had not heard him called a liar before he was a spotter.

Wesley Gilman of Westbrook, a room foreman in the paper mill, testified that Herman works under him at the mill. Should say Herman's reputation was bad from what he knew.

Cross examined, stated that he was testifying from both knowledge and general reputation. Stated that he had been in a social club in Westbrook more or less. Said he has a box at the hotel where there but had seen men go to the boxes and take out bottles and drink out of them. Couldn't say whether it was water or liquor or what it was.

Testified that he had about 30 men working under him. Herman's voracity had been bad among the men since he had known him. People claim that they would put no dependence in Herman. Stated that some people that try to law enforce the prohibitory law have a good reputation with his associates and some do not.

Re-direct. Had showed Herman paper containing report of work at Rumford Falls. Herman had explained work to him. Said he didn't like to do the work but that he needed the money. That he was hired by County Attorney Barnes and was paid $15 a day and expenses, and cleared up $200. That his son got hurt and there was sickness in his family and he needed the money. Was put in foreman last summer. Had worked in mill 29 years.

J. E. Burnell of Westbrook, night superintendent at paper mill, was the next witness. Gilman and Herman work under him. Herman's reputation for truth and veracity is not very good.

Mr. Herman was again called to the stand by Mr. Barnes. Stated that he was a member of the Maine Civic League. When first employed as a spotter, Mr. Pearson was sheriff of Cumberland county. Mr. Gilman first brought up the conversation and told him that the boys wanted him to ask him about it. Did not tell him that he got $15 a day. Has family at Westbrook and owns house and lot there.

Mr. McCarthy asked him if he had been through bankruptcy. "Yes, sir," Herman replied sharply. "You're so sharp, you can snap you up as well as I can you."

Mr. McCarthy then addressed the jury and dwelt strongly on the testimony and character of Mr. Herman. His time was devoted almost entirely to the fact that the half pint of whiskey that Mr. Herman said he had purchased was not offered in court to prove his statement. Mr. McCarthy taxed at $10, also to a single sale charge, the sentence being $50 and costs taxed at $10.

This case being disposed of the case of Harry DeLong of Rumford charged with maintaining a nuisance was taken up and trial begun before the first jury. County Attorney Barnes proceeded to state his case to the jury. M. F. McCarthy represented DeLong.

This case developed in an interesting and rather exciting manner caused by the introduction by the State of George E. Herman, who had spotted liquor sellers at Rumford Falls. At times the contest was sharp and numerous objections were raised on both sides. The testimony in part is given below.

Harris L. Elliott of Rumford Falls knew the respondent and that he was in business at the hotel at the corner of the building at Rumford Falls in January. Mr. Elliott described the place used for a beer shop. He arrested DeLong Feb. 4th.

Cross examined, Elliott stated that he had been from DeLong's tested and that it was less than 8 per cent. alcohol. L. P. Merrill, a police officer of Rumford Falls, testified that he was familiar with the location of Canal street, where DeLong's shop is, as it is on his beat.

The place was well patronized. Made an arrest there while DeLong was running the place. There was a fight in the shop and the police were called in.

Cross examined, Mr. Merrill stated that Mrs. Siddall kept boarders in the building.

George E. Herman, age 52, of Westbrook stated that by trade he was a paper maker. Came to Rumford Falls, Jan. 24, at the request of Mr. Barnes. Stayed at Rumford Falls eight days. Went to the hotel block, Jan. 25, and bought beer. Asked and paid for beer but didn't think it was. Went into shop again Jan. 30th and saw several men there, some were the worse for drinking. Went in again with another man and had conversation with DeLong, bought whiskey for six men. Went in later and bought 1/2 pint whiskey in pint bottle and bought drinks for nine men.

Cross examined. Asked if he went into these shops alone, said that he did not. Asked who it was, said that he did not know and did not know where he was. Stated he was paid to do this work. Had done the same work in Portland a few years ago.

Mr. McCarthy asked numerous questions that were objected to by Mr. Barnes and ruled by the court. Asked regarding if he was hard up or had so said to fellow workers and said, "No, sir." "Oh, you're not?" "No, sir, and that's none of your outfit, sir."

At 4.40 the State rested and Mr. McCarthy took up the defense and dwelt on the length on the character of George E. Herman and stated that he was hired by the State to testify in this case and that the law allowed such witnesses to be impeached and that was what they proposed to do by calling witnesses.

Mr. Herman was then called to the stand and was acquainted with Mr. Herman and knew what his reputation was. Mr. McCarthy called four witnesses who were duly sworn.

Harry DeLong stated that he had lived at Rumford Falls for some time. Deposed the Siddall place from about Jan. 14 to Feb. 3. Remembered seeing Herman in his place. When he came in on Jan. 25, asked him to serve the boys what they wanted, gave them beer. Second time was there asked for whiskey and told him that he didn't carry that kind of goods. Stated that he did not sell anyone any intoxicating liquors while he was in there, sold Uno beer and cigars.

Cross examined. Came to Rumford Falls first of month of January. Had been away about 15 months, worked in woods at Conway, N. H., and had also worked in Boston. Had also been in Rangle region cutting lumber. Traded with Dan McCarthy to take the shop at Rumford Falls. Stated that he had been in shop on Jan. 30. There were no rows while he was in shop.

Wesley Gilman of Westbrook, a room foreman in the paper mill, testified that Herman works under him at the mill. Should say Herman's reputation was bad from what he knew.

Mr. McCarthy asked him if he had been through bankruptcy. "Yes, sir," Herman replied sharply. "You're so sharp, you can snap you up as well as I can you."

Mr. McCarthy then addressed the jury and dwelt strongly on the testimony and character of Mr. Herman. His time was devoted almost entirely to the fact that the half pint of whiskey that Mr. Herman said he had purchased was not offered in court to prove his statement. Mr. McCarthy spent considerable time in portraying the character of the State's witnesses and gave his reasons why he considered that they should not carry too much weight.

Mr. Barnes took his place and addressed the jury commenting shortly on the remarks of Mr. McCarthy, while he called Herman a liar and the like. He said that the government sends out detectives, and that he had not should not lose any sleep over the course he had taken. He stated that he should not call the respondent a liar but there had been enough of that but he would review his testimony.

Mr. Barnes considered the testimony of the three Westbrook men, the barber with the "Henry Irving" face, the room foreman, who had but recently been elevated to the position, who belongs to a club where they keep water in a bottle in a locker. He commented on the testimony of the night superintendent, whom he complimented on his honest bearing, and dealt with the case in general.

The court gave his charge to the jury and after being out about 15 minutes they returned and reported a verdict of guilty. This closed the business of the day.

Assistant Attorney General Warren C. Philbrick of Waterville presided on the afternoon train, Monday, to be in readiness to assist in the Wallace Everett murder trial, which was to open Tuesday morning.

Promptly at ten o'clock court was called. There were a large number of spectators in the court room who had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the day, as so far this term there had been very little doing that was of interest from their point of view.

Wallace C. Everett was brought to the dock at a few minutes past ten o'clock. The special jurors from Lovell, Andover and Gilead were not in the court room at this time. This caused some delay in getting started. County Attorney General Warren C. Philbrick gave charge of the case for the State with Hon. John P. Swasey and Walter L. Gray on the defense, assisted by Merton L. Kimball.

Agnes Merrill is Mr. Swasey's stenographer. Before proceeding it was decided to wait until the arrival of the mail to see if any new venires were received. No returns were received from the three towns.

Judge Whitehouse explained what the requirements of a jury were, stating that one who had read newspaper accounts or formed an opinion from some other source of information was not necessarily disqualified unless it was such an opinion that could not be changed by hearing the evidence and in that regard he rendered an impartial verdict. In all 55 jurors were drawn before the panel was complete.

Alton L. McAllister, Stoneham, accepted. M. H. Hathaway, Woodstock, accepted. Rollin N. Scotton, Sumner, challenged by defense.

The drawing of the jury occupied about one hour and fifty minutes. The court appointed Ellis Delano of Canton foreman of the jury. At about 12.30 the clerk read the indictment charging Wallace C. Everett with the murder of Edgar Radcliffe, at which court adjourned until 2.15 o'clock.

Promptly at the opening of court in the afternoon, County Attorney Barnes opened the State's case. Mr. Barnes addressed the jury commenting on the evidence available but not very good.

Mr. Herman was again called to the stand by Mr. Barnes. Stated that he was a member of the Maine Civic League. When first employed as a spotter, Mr. Pearson was sheriff of Cumberland county. Mr. Gilman first brought up the conversation and told him that the boys wanted him to ask him about it. Did not tell him that he got $15 a day. Has family at Westbrook and owns house and lot there.

Mr. McCarthy asked him if he had been through bankruptcy. "Yes, sir," Herman replied sharply. "You're so sharp, you can snap you up as well as I can you."

Mr. McCarthy then addressed the jury and dwelt strongly on the testimony and character of Mr. Herman. His time was devoted almost entirely to the fact that the half pint of whiskey that Mr. Herman said he had purchased was not offered in court to prove his statement. Mr. McCarthy by telephone found there the body of the not yet dead but dying boy.

The body was placed in a team and taken to an unused store at Paris Hill. The body was turned over to the sorrowing relatives by the coroner. But the undertaker discovered a cut in the throat which was closed and called the relatives. They could but say that his throat was cut. The body was taken to the undertaker's room at South Paris, surgeons were called in, who thrust three fingers into the gash.

Mr. Barnes gradually worked up to the matter of a motive for the deed and stated that the State would produce evidence that Wallace C. Everett was a man who had an adequate motive for doing the deed. He then told how Radcliffe had insurance that was payable to Everett.

Mr. Barnes occupied a little more than an hour with his opening and then called the witnesses for the State. There were some 18 who were present and were sworn.

Walter L. Gray of South Paris was first called to the stand. Mr. Gray is a surveyor and made the plan which was shown. This he explained in detail.

Mr. Gray told of in nearly all places was rocky and rough. He also told of the roads and paths and gave the distances from various points on the plan. Here was a recess of ten minutes and Mr. Gray made some computations of distances which he gave.

Scott O. Colby, a farmer of Paris, lives on road leading from Paris Hill to Buckfield. The county road that runs by Crocker hill leads into the Buckfield road near his house. Mr. Colby stated that Radcliffe was at work for him and his father in June 1907. Radcliffe boarded with him for some time. Immediately preceding his death he was boarding with Mr. Colby's father. Radcliffe was employed as a regular farm hand.

Mr. Colby's family consisted of himself, wife and two children. Radcliffe spent most of the evenings at his house. This particular week he was not at home every evening. During the months of the spring he was away three or four evenings a week. When he was out evenings usually heard him when he came in. Saw Ed go from the house, Thursday evening. Had his best suit on. He carried a bundle from the house. Did not see him until he came in this time had been a change made. Should say he left house about seven o'clock Thursday night. Ed was in habit of using intoxicating liquors. Had seen him have a bottle in the house the night he was killed. Even- ing of June 18th was dark. Heard sound of an explosion about a quarter of ten.

Colby stated that he was acquainted with the respondent, had seen him at his house twice with a team. Ed went away with him both times. Colby made contract with Ed to work. Price was $15 a month and board. Ed took up wages about as fast as he earned them. Was on mine Sunday after the explosion. Was there with Everett. Had conversation with him. Asked him if Ed didn't try to get out. Everett replied that he didn't make a sound until he was back down the road about two rods.

Cross examined, don't know if the bottle he had in June was all that Ed had or not. Don't know where he was the night he was away. Ed left two pairs of shoes, some stockings, old overalls, lantern, wagon and harness at Colby's house. Stated he went to the pasture with one of the selectmen on evening of June 13th.

Chas. H. Colby, father of Scott Colby, stated that Ed ate supper with him about 5 o'clock of afternoon of June 13. Had white bread, butter, tapioca pudding, cold beef for supper.

Cross examined, asked what he had for supper the night of June 12th and 14th was not quite certain. Questioned as to raising apples said he didn't have Baldwin at the time but had Ben Davis. Asked what he called them said he called them Ben Davis, some called them cork stoppers. Didn't eat any apples June 13th. Couldn't say when Ed had any rum.

Mr. Colby was sharply questioned by Mr. Swasey but made an excellent witness.

Went to mine next morning after death of Edgar Radcliffe. Saw him have a bundle when he went away. Saw bundle after he was dead; had underwear in it.

Court Notes.

Monday afternoon Albert C. Eames of Bethel was admitted to the bar after a year's study. Application was presented by Hon. James S. Wright.

Friday, Ostino Paparato was sentenced to two years in state prison for assault with intent to kill. Friday night he got a cord out of the side of his hammock, tied it to the side of the cage and around the cell mate, Onofrio Montisano, discovered him, lifted him up and untied the cord. The day before an electric bell had been installed in Jailer Farrar's bedroom with a button in the guard room. The man in the guard room heard the noise and pushed the button. Mr. Farrar was on hand and telephoned for a physician. Paparato was then in such a condition that he had little pulse but he recovered all right. The cause of the act is given as jealousy. A woman who had lived with him some years had apparently tired of him and married another man. Paparato went to her house and in the absence of the husband slashed the woman in the throat with a razor, inflicting wounds from which she recovered.

Judge Whitehouse is stopping at the Hotel Andrews during his stay here. Assistant Attorney General Warren C. Philbrick is also guest at the hotel.

House Came Near Burning.

The farm buildings of R. N. Lowell came near burning, Wednesday, which caused quite a scare. Lowell was away in the woods and no one at home but his wife and a little granddaughter three years old. As Mrs. Lowell was passing through the wooded she heard a crackling sound and stepped outside to investigate. In looking up she saw the ell was on fire. Leaving the little girl in the house she started for the nearest neighbor Stearns. She ran to the lane and screamed fire. Stearns was also away in the woods. Mrs. Stearns heard her cries and rushed to the door, and asked where the fire was.

Mrs. Lowell pointed to the roof of the house and said she would run for the Moultons, which was one-half mile. Mrs. Stearns thinking their house was on fire rushed back into the house and running to the front door which had a screen door and had not been opened for the winter, and being frozen in she put her weight against it breaking through, she began to throw things out of the house. In the mean time she went to see if some one was not coming. She saw Moulton's folks running their team into Lowell's, then she discovered the roof of Lowell's buildings was on fire.

In the time Mrs. Lowell had run half a mile back to Moulton's and reached there just as they were starting with their team for Hiram village. They reached the burning building in a few minutes and with quick hard work they succeeded in putting out the fire after burning a hole ten by four feet in the roof.
